Butterfly Route

In 2020, in the former village of Bas-Caraquet, the first giant butterfly of the Acadian Peninsula was born.

What began as a project to attract new tourists to the beach in Bas-Caraquet soon snowballed.

Inspired by the international tourist attraction "Angel Wings," a decision was made to create a symbol that would represent Canada. Following the official inauguration of the new structure on July 17, 2021, several municipalities showed a keen interest to be part of the project.

To date, 14 types of butterflies have been created in the Acadian Peninsula. Known as the Butterfly Route, the initiative has become a tourist and educational attraction. Illustrated descriptions help visitors learn more about each type of butterfly found in the area.
