Butterfly

Route

In 2020, in the former village of Bas-Caraquet, the first giant butterfly of the Acadian Peninsula was born.

What began as a project to attract new tourists to the beach in Bas-Caraquet soon snowballed.

Inspired by the international tourist attraction “Angel Wings,” a decision was made to create a symbol that would represent Canada. Following the official inauguration of the new structure on July 17, 2021, several municipalities showed a keen interest to be part of the project.

To date, 15 types of butterflies have been created in the Acadian Peninsula. Known as the Butterfly Route, the initiative has become a tourist and educational attraction. Illustrated descriptions help visitors learn more about each type of butterfly found in the area.

Stop in at the visitor centres for tips on where to find them!
